

You Don't Have Time For Drama

Do you know people who live in drama? In other words, they start their day with drama, go throughout the day in drama, and go to bed looking forward to the next day of drama. I don't care who you are, hanging around people who are drama kings and queens can wear you out. Not only will drama wear you out, it'll deplete your energy, desire, and passion to be all the you that God has called you to be. Sometimes the best remedy in dealing with drama kings and queens is to leave them alone. In case you missed it, you need to tell them, 'see ya, don't want to be ya.' From this day forward, you need to make up your mind who you let in your life and what you let in your life. Take care of yourself and never allow anyone to bring you down.

Through my interactions with people on a daily basis, I'm always looking for people who can motivate me in my career, ministry, and personal life. With all of the advice I receive, I had an elderly woman drop some powerful words in my spirit the other day. That's right; her words arrested my spirit and provided me with a deeper outlook on life. The words spoken to me were, 'don't waste your time dealing with drama.' Sounds simple, but is it really? When you're confronted with drama along with drama kings and queens, what do you do? Do you fuel the fire or do you cut it off before it escalates? Failure to live your life free of drama will cause you to waste your time and exude unnecessary energy. The choice is yours. No one should be able to make the decision for you.

In this spiritual journey, you need to know that you weren't created to walk in drama. Let me say that again. When God orders your steps, He expects you to rise above drama, mediocrity, foolishness, and stupidity. Knowing who you are, whose you are, and your divinely designed purpose will propel you above stuff that's beneath you. Only people who feel sorry for themselves operate in a life full of drama. Here's a hint - if there's people around you always trying to get you to participate in drama, let them go. Don't hold on to them. State your case and they'll either come up to your level or continue to live corrupt, damaged, and messed up. Tell yourself, no more drama, no more headaches, and no more foolishness.

The writer of Proverbs penned these words, "In the house of the righteous there is much treasure, but in the revenue of the wicked is trouble." Please don't miss this. Drama kings and queens rob you of what is cosmically designed for you. In a real sense, the more time you spend in other people's drama, the less you're working on what God has called you to do. Don't get me wrong, it's okay to help and minister in the time of need, but don't get it twisted - you're not in position to live a life full of drama. That's my word for you. Live your life above the status quo. Don't give in to drama and don't allow it to take up residence within your circle.

Scripture of the Day:

"Blessed is the man who does not walk in the counsel of the wicked or stand in the way of sinners or sit in the seat of mockers."
(Psalms 1:1 -NIV)
